SAYS UNCLE SAM WILL OWN ROADS

This Is Senator Morgan's View of Railroad Rate Bill Results.

DOES NOT LIKE TO CONTEMPLATE SUCH END

Holds That Proposed Measure Will Do Away With Sacred Rights.

WASHINGTON, April 2-Mr. McLaurin and Mr. Morgan addressed the Senate today on the railroad rate question, the former advocating legislation and the latter opposing.

The Mississippi Senator announced his ntention to support an amendment providing for a court review of the decisions of the Interstate Commerce commission and also stated his adherence to the Balley act prohibiting the temporary suspension of the commission's orders by the inferior courts. He criticised what he characterized as an effort to inject poli-tics into the consideration of the bill.

Advocates Competition.

Mr. Morgan took the position that the proposed legislation was an interference with the rights of the States to control the corporations created by themselves, and sain that the best way to check ex-orbitant railroad rates was to keep the waterways in such condition as to insure

Repeals Sacred Law.

Repeals Sacred Law.

Mr. Morgan, in addressing the Senate on the rairoad rate bill said that he was opposed to the bill under consideration, known as the Hepburn-Dolliver bill, because il created a National commission that would uitimately come under the control of the railroads. He said that the bill repealed a law that was sacred to the English-speaking people, the right of jury trial, and vested in a commission the right to determine the reasonableness of a raie. He said that the bill took away from the States the right to determine what was a reasonable rate and vested the power of determination in a National commission.

Government Will Own.

Government Will Own.

"In the end," he said, "the United States will own all the railroads, a condition which he did not like to contemplate. He spoke of the dangers of the management of the railroad systems of the United States by fifty magnates, and predicted "a cyclone of socialism," with consequent wreckage of values, as the result of their unbridled control of this great power. He believed the States could control the roads single-banded, but if aid from the National Government was necessary it could be granted by a few simple enactments without entering upon an effort to regulate rates.

Constitution Violated.

Mr Morgan said that the proposed en-actment was intended to secure control of the railroads by a process of constric-tion, and he declared that inasmuch as the railroads were private property this was a violation of the constitution—the taking of property without due process of law.

The people of the States that have The people of the States that have built the roads refuse to submit them to the control of Congress," he said. "The United States cannot control the roads because they have no proprietorship in them; the States can control them, be-cause they have proprietorship in them through their charters."

Would Restrict Privileges.

Outlining the Congressional legislation he would support, he said he would deny to any railroad, the majority of whose stock was controlled by another company or held in another State than that in which the road was owned, the privilege of doing an interstate business. He said also that he should not favor a policy that would prevent a judicial review of the findings of a railroad commission.

The Senate adjourned at 4.25 p m after in executive session of five minutes' duralion.

A pretty home wedding was the one solemnized last evening at the residence of James Cunningham on First street, when his daughter, Alice, became the bride of Charles Pratt. It was an Easter wedding in every detail. The pariors were banked with many pots of blooming lilles, which were effectively arranged in the windows, while tail vases of the flowers were on the mantel. The ceremony was performed promptly at sociock by Rev. Elmer I. Goshen in the presence of the relatives and a few close friends of the bride and groom Miss Josephine Wells was the bridesmaid, and very dainty did she look in a gown of palepink mousseline de sole with trimmings of lace, her bouquet being of shaded pink carnations. The groom was attended by Frank Cook as best man. The bride was gowned in a beautiful frock of white radium silk elaborately trimmed with vallenciennes lace and insertion. A long tulle veil foil to the hem of her gown and she carried a shower of brides roses. The decorations in the diningroom were in green and white, a low bed of Easter lilles forming the centerpiece, with loose flowers scattered over the cloth. From the large wedding cake were long white ribbons extending to the corners of the table. Following the ceremony a supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Fratt leaving on the late train for the coast, where they will spend their honeymoon before returning to this city, where they will make their future home. The bride's going-away gown was a handsome reseda green bolero suit, with hat to match. For the past three years Mrs. Pratt has been one of the most popular beiles of the younger set, the groom being a well-known young business man.

IN BUDDHA'S MEMORY

Followers of Ancient Hindoo Faith Hold Services.

NEW YORK, April 9 .- While Christian churches last night, with sermon and song, were celebrating Palm Sunday and the entry of the Savior into Jerusalem before his crucifixion, priests of the Buddhist faith in a house, No. 62 West street, in strange robes and weird chanting, were celebrating the birth of their Savior, Guatama Buddha, 2450

In the little Buddhist temple there were no hymns, no prayers nor other of the religious forms of the Christian faith, but the sermons peached by the Christian clergymen and by the Bud-dhist priests differed little. It was the same message of purity, peace and for-
